

neech jaat har japti-aa utam padvee paa-ay

slhl mhl w 4 Gru 6 (733-7)	soohee mehlaa 4 ghar 6	Soohee, Fourth Mehl, Sixth House:
nlc j wiq hir j piqAw aqum pdvl pwie]	neech jaat har japti-aa utam padvee paa-ay.	When someone of low social class chants the Lord's Name, he obtains the state of highest dignity.
pChuibdr dwsI sqYIksnu aqirAw Gir ij suj wie]1]	poochhahu bidar daasee sutai kisan utri-aa ghar jis jaa-ay. 1	Go and ask Bidar, the son of a maid; Krishna himself stayed in his house. 1
hir kl AkQ kQw sinhu j n Bwel ij qushsw dIK BK sB I ih j wie]1] rhwau]	har kee akath kathaa sunhu jan bhaa-ee jit sahsaa dookh bhookh sabh leh jaa-ay. 1 rahaa-o.	Listen, O humble Siblings of Destiny, to the Unspoken Speech of the Lord; it removes all anxiety, pain and hunger. 1 Pause
rividisu cmwru aIsiq kryhir klriq inmK iek gwie]	ravidaas chamaar ustaat karay har keerat nimakh ik gaa-ay.	Ravi Daas, the leather-worker, praised the Lord, and sang the Kirtan of His Praises each and every instant.
piqq j wiq aqmuBieAw cwir vrn peypig Awie]2]	patit jaat utam bha-i-aa chaar varan pa-ay pag aa-ay. 2	Although he was of low social status, he was exalted and elevated, and people of all four castes came and bowed at his feet. 2
namdyA pliq I gl hir sqI I ku Clpw khYbl wie]	naamday-a pareet lagee har saytee lok chheepaa kahai bulaa- ay.	Naam Dayv loved the Lord; the people called him a fabric dyer.
Kqll blhmX ipiT dyCfyhir nmdyau I IAw miK I wie]3]	khatre baraahman pith day chhoday har naamday-o lee-aa mukh laa-ay. 3	The Lord turned His back on the high-class Kh'shaatriyas and Brahmins, and showed His face to Naam Dayv. 3
ij qnyBgq hir sykw miK ATsIT qlrQ iqn iql kuKwie]	jitnay bhagat har sayvkaa mukh athsath tirath tin tilak kadhaa-ay.	All of the devotees and servants of the Lord have the tilak, the ceremonial mark, applied to their foreheads at the sixty- eight sacred shrines of pilgrimage.
j nu nwnku iqn kauAnidnu prsy jyikpw kryhir rwie]4]1]8]	jan naanak tin ka-o an-din parsay jay kirpaa karay har raa-ay. 4 1 8	Servant Nanak shall touch their feet night and day, if the Lord, the King, grants His Grace. 4 1 8